MY EARLIEST MEMORY • 1959 • AGE 4

My Earliest Memory

I can still feel the wobble of those first pedals. My little legs were pumping, but balance was a mystery I hadn't solved yet. Dad's hand was firm on the back of the seat, steadying me as we rolled down that tree-lined path. He kept saying, "You've got it. Just keep going." And I wanted so badly to believe him.

Lesson Learned

In life, as with learning to ride a bike, the true test of courage isn't in avoiding the fall but in trusting that we have the strength to get back up and keep going, even when those who guide us let go.

Text captures the facts. Voice captures the soul.

When Dad talks about his first car, you don't just get the make and model—you hear the pride in his voice when he describes saving every paycheck. When Mom recalls her wedding day, you hear the catch in her throat. That's what gets preserved.
